Jubilant Germany Hails Victorious Conclusion of War In Continental Europe

Britain Reports "Highly Successful" Bombing Raids In Germany and Holland

By International News Service

BERLIN, June 25—As a jubilant Germany hailed the victorious conclusion of the war in continental Europe, Chancellor Hitler lost no time today in consolidating his conquest in France in order to throw the full energies of the Reich against England.

The Fuehrer's first move today was announcement of appointment of General von Stuelpnagel to head the Franco-German Armistice Commission which will supervise enforcement of the terms of the truce.

Throughout the Reich today flags were flown in celebration, and church bells pealed out victoriously, as jubilant Nazi circles predicted the Rome-Berlin axis may bring their war with Britain to a victorious conclusion before the end of the Summer.

BERLIN, June 25—Terms of the Franco-German armistice will be officially published in Berlin in the evening newspapers today.

It was learned that they consist of eight typewritten pages containing 24 separate paragraphs.

LONDON, June 25—"Highly successful" bombing raids upon military objectives in Germany and Holland were reported today by the British Air Ministry. A communique said:

"The Royal Air Force yesterday raided the Ruhr area and Holland, and during the daytime attacked an oil depot in Germany and directed a series of raids against airdromes in Holland.

"Both day and night operations were highly successful."

County Seat Guardsmen Spent Week-End At Camp

DOYLESTOWN, June 25—Seventy enlisted men of Company D, the only Pennsylvania National Guard machine gun unit located in Bucks County, participated in a week-end training program at the Stemple Farm, Castle Valley.

Full field equipment was taken, the guardsmen marching the five miles from the armory to the site of the bivouac.

Pup tents were erected, and mess served in the evening by Sergeant Frank Walton and his kitchen crew. The machine gunners marched to the Edison range to compute data for a night firing problem; then after dark four of the late type 30-calibre guns were used on a 40-foot canvass, target on which were painted life-size silhouettes.

CALLS FOR CRUSADE TO WARD OFF DICTATORSHIP

Representative Martin Accuses Roosevelt of Leading Nation Toward Such

CASTIGATES NEW DEAL

By William K. Hutchinson
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 25—Flatly accusing President Roosevelt of leading the nation toward dictatorship, Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts today called on a thousand delegates to the GOP national convention for a "crusade" to check the alleged drift and to preserve fundamental Americanism.

Assuming permanent chairmanship of the convention, Martin castigated the New Deal for harboring "fifth columnists," condemned what he termed a seven-year "nightmare of experimentation and spending," and predicted administration at the polls next November repudiation of the Roosevelt Administration.

In addition, he took a pointed slap at alleged interventionist policies of Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, asserting that "there is much reason to believe we may yet awake to find we have been pushed into war."

"For seven anxious years we have seen this march toward one-man government," he cried. "There is a steady drift toward governmental absolutism."

"ROOKIES" ARE NEEDED IN THE CADET CORPS

Membership Drive Opens and Applicants Must Appear Tomorrow Night

THE AGE LIMIT IS 9 TO 16

"Rookies" are needed in the American Legion Cadet Corps.

The Bracken Post Cadet Corps is now conducting a membership drive, the age limit being from nine to 16 years.

There are without doubt, in the opinion of corps commander Charles Brodie, and Post commander Marvel Durham, a number of lads in Bristol and vicinity who have been keenly awaiting an opportunity to join the corps.

The boys desiring to take advantage of this opportunity to become cadets, are asked to report at the high school building tomorrow evening, or at the Bracken Post home, Friday evening, with one of their parents accompanying them.

The corps officials urge that those desirous of joining, do so at once, as the offer will close as soon as the required number of "rookies" is secured.

The intention is to build up the "rookie" corps to a point where it will be as strong as the regular corps, causing more interest between the two.

Bracken Post cadet corps is the oldest corps in the county. It also holds records which no other corps can boast of.

The main things the corps teaches are discipline, and Americanism; and it also aids the girl and boy in school.

Ex-Governor Fisher Dies

Pittsburgh, June 25—Former Governor John S. Fisher, who served as Pennsylvania's chief executive from 1927 until 1931, died in his Pittsburgh apartment today after an extended illness. He was 73.

Death came at 4:20 a. m. The six-foot, slender ex-Governor had been in critical condition for weeks.

A son, Robert M., an attorney in Indiana, was at his bedside. A daughter, Mrs. Mary Fisher Brown, who served as first lady of Pennsylvania during his administration, died two years ago.

He was not active politically in late years, except to send thousands of personal letters in 1938 in behalf of Gov. Arthur H. James who was Lieutenant-Governor when he was chief executive.

During the last two years of his administration, a series of factional fights projected Fisher into the national picture as a Presidential possibility.

Hoover The Key Man

June 24. THERE are two defeated Republican candidates for the Presidency who will play a part in this convention; one as a delegate from Kansas, the other as a guest. But the towering figure of the two is that of Herbert Hoover, who by invitation will address the assemblage Tuesday night. There are so many things to say of Mr. Hoover and so many conflicting views of him that it is not easy to compress them in a single column.

HE has here—and in the country—many warm and devoted friends and he also has a great many very emphatic enemies. The most unrelenting of these are certain politicians in his own party, but the most bitter are the New Deal journalists who aided in the great smearing act of 1929-1933. There are people here who believe that Mr. Hoover can be nominated, but not elected, and there are others who are convinced that he cannot be nominated, but could be elected. Then there are those who contend that he can be both nominated and elected and those who are certain he can be neither nominated nor elected.

IT is easy to find plenty of people belonging to all these groups. They are as wide apart as the poles and altogether irreconcilable. However, it is both interesting and significant that there are exceedingly few in any group who do not concede that in the matters of experience and equipment no other party figure measures up to the Hoover statue. And there is another thing upon which most competent observers of this un-

IT CAN BE DONE

Skepticism in the aircraft industry as to possibilities for mass production of airplanes probably arises from lack of knowledge of the refinements developed in recent years in the manufacture of automobiles.

The Liberty airplane engine produced by the United States automobile industry during the World War never won much acclaim. Perhaps the memory of those days has something to do with the present attitude of aircraft manufacturers toward quantity production. But that was twenty years ago and in the meantime the methods and quality of automobile manufacture have changed as much as the superficial appearance of the vehicles.

In making the mass-produced and interchangeable parts of the modern automobile engine, machines now work to minute tolerances. The honing of bearings is done by machines which reject an error of one millionth of an inch, an accuracy which the handcraft methods still employed in most aircraft manufacturing can not even rival.

If aircraft manufacturing is "backward" in such matters, it is not the fault of the technicians, but of lack of opportunity to develop quantity methods. Manufacture has been largely experimental. Models have changed, not yearly but continually. The market would not permit quantity output of any one model, even if the keen technical competition had permitted it.

The big difficulty the layman has foreseen in mass-producing aircraft is in the building of wings and fuselages, involving the use of millions of tiny hand-set rivets. But Henry Ford says this can be overcome by substituting welding and brazing, which, if true, certainly would save time.

A greater obstacle may prove finally to be the conservatism of present aircraft manufacturers, who well might resent the invasion of their field by mass-producing competitors. Their co-operation is indispensable, however, and their patriotism will not be found wanting.

TOTALITARIAN?

Not the least problem put before the world by the conquest of France by Hitler is that of the nature of the political future of the French republic. Is France now to go totalitarian? That would be following the fashion of Germany, Italy and Spain, its neighbors, none of which is longer negligible.

And if it is to be the totalitarian thing for France, what kind of autocracy? Is it to be the Nazism of Hitler, the Fascism of Mussolini and Franco or the Communism of Stalin?

For a time at least it is fair to assume that some one will be in charge of France who will conform to Hitler's policies. There will be no short working days and short working weeks in France for quite a spell. Labor strikes, with which France has abounded, will be under interdict. The Frenchman, notably individualistic, is looked for much painful regimentation.

However, France, always a fertile field for agitators, will not change fundamentally in its political prejudices. The radicals can be expected to begin building up political forces against the Nazi influence and in the fullness of time will seek to impose on France some other brand of autocracy.

Wesleyan elementary, Edward Atkinson, Wrightstown, grant at Oberlin College.

An effort will be made to divert Bethlehem pike traffic around Perkaskie and Sellersville during the firemen's parade to take place at Perkaskie on the afternoon of June 29th.

This was recommended at a special meeting of the Perkaskie Fire Company. The company is celebrating its 50th anniversary with a series of events next week, culminating in a parade on Saturday afternoon.

At present traffic from the Bethlehem pike is being detoured from Sellersville through Perkaskie, because the bridge over the Branch creek at Sellersville is being rebuilt. The detour carries the traffic from the highway over Walnut street, Perkaskie, the thoroughfare the firemen mean to use for their parade.

The Great Game of Politics controlled Convention seem to agree—to wit, that the Hoover influence among the delegates is greater than that of any other single individual.

IN addition to his own California delegation which, in accord with his wish, will not present his name, but is nevertheless composed largely of his friends—in addition to that, in a good many States he has a considerable number of men and women delegates who look to him for leadership. There is no Hoover headquarters, no Hoover organization, no Hoover movement, no Hoover candidacy and, so far as can be judged, slight possibility that Mr. Hoover can be nominated. Moreover, despite a lot of loose talk, there is no evidence whatever that he wants to be. Of course, there is the possibility that after many ballots it may be demonstrated that neither Taft, Willkie nor Dewey can be nominated and the convention then turn to Mr. Hoover.

—O—

BUT that is a remote contingency, discussed here and there in a vague and casual way and, of course, alleged by the unfriendly to be the Hoover hope. Mr. Hoover is neither a fool nor a child in politics. He knows perfectly well that however able a speech he may make tomorrow night he will stampede no delegates and that some of his warmest admirers in the Convention do not want to see him nominated. Those who know him best are convinced that what Mr. Hoover primarily wants of this Convention is a candidate and a platform that will drive the New Dealers out of power. Notwithstanding the persistence with which the lowest motives are attributed to him by his enemies, they know that he is convinced the nation, tough as it is, cannot stand another four years of the kind of leadership it has had for the past seven.

—O—

AT the age of 66 he is entirely clear headed about himself and has no desire to take on again the terrible burden of the Presidency. Those who dislike Mr. Hoover will not believe that, but it is nonetheless true. Beyond doubt, he will make a good speech tomorrow night and by a good many it will be construed as his bid for the nomination, unless he does what some of his friends here hope he will do. That is take the occasion completely to disclaim all personal political ambition. It is not likely he will do that, but if he should his party position would be immensely strengthened; his prestige and power enhanced. Even if he does not, clearly he is the key-man of the convention. There is reason to believe he is not favorable to Mr. Dewey, but as between Senator Taft and Mr. Willkie, both of whom he likes, he has indicated no choice and those who have seen him are uncertain as to his preference. But of this they are not uncertain—it is in Mr. Hoover's power at this time to nominate either one of them.

—O—

—O—

HE has more than enough weight to insure the selection of the man for whom he plumps. A single statement favoring one or the other would do the job and the practical politicians here know it. He could swing to either one of these men not only the solid California delegation of 44, but a good many others scattered about in the States who are waiting to see what Mr. Hoover wants done. In brief, while he cannot nominate himself, in a fight such as this with the forces fairly evenly divided, he certainly can nominate his choice among the candidates. If there were no other reason for his influence the quite obvious fact that whoever is nominated will need the whole-hearted support of Mr. Hoover to win, would be enough.

—O—

UNDER the circumstances, it is easy to appreciate that his presence here as well as his speech are of vital interest and concern to delegates, leaders and candidates. No one knows what he will say and no one knows which way he will lean. All one knows of his feelings toward the leaders in the race is the fact that to more than one of his friends when Mr. Willkie's name was mentioned, Mr. Hoover has remarked, "Well, of course, with a man like that in the White House, I could sleep pretty easily." That was some weeks ago. It is not, of course, conclusive, but it is indicative.

When the latter asked Lee Holt, a flier, how Tex is, he tells her everything is fine but his uneasiness disturbs her. He did not mention that he had found Tex sitting in his car with Sonia Winthrop, wealthy aviatrix. . . . Tex who usually was so temperamental that he wanted no one to even speak to him before a race! While watching Tex's ship jockey into position for the main event, Judith overhears three girls chattering about Sonia and Tex: "Sonny had a date with him last night and he's coming to her party tonight. He's crazy about her, but then everybody is," Judith stiffened. So that was what had been wrong with Lee. The shout, "THEY'RE OFF!" brought Judith's mind back to the race. With tense nerves, she watched the planes round pylon after pylon, Tex in the lead. Suddenly, a roar rose from the crowd. Marvin Stone's plane crashed and he was killed. Grief-stricken, Elsie tries later to jump out of her hotel window, but Judith pulled her back. Michael Dudley, airlines general manager and Tex's employer, arrives and takes the two women to the home of his friends, the Duttons, which the latter thoughtfully offered to the bereaved Elsie.

CHAPTER SIX

Judith was alone. She threw herself onto the chaise lounge and wept quietly. She got up and tiptoed into the bedroom. Elsie was still sleeping and Judith went back to the sitting room.

The butler brought her supper on a tray. It glittered with silver and he set it on a table near the window, lifting the covers of the delectable dishes. Suddenly Judith realized she was terribly hungry.

Judith thanked him and he left her alone again. After dinner she got up from the table impatiently, began to pace aimlessly about. Such a beautiful room, all rose and grey. There were books and flowers about. She wondered vaguely about her hostess.

When she tried to read she found her head ached badly. Her eyes smarted from the many tears. Now and then she looked into Elsie's room, but all was quiet. What a blessing sleep was!

The day had been a nightmare. Looking back it seemed years since she and Elsie had gone to the airport. How silly she had been to be so upset about what those girls had said about Sonia Winthrop!

"I'll not think of it again!" But she wished desperately that Tex would telephone. He'd come with Mr. Dudley, she was sure, he'd know how she needed him. Never would she mention the episode of Sonia. Of course, he'd talked to the girl! She must be a thrilling person. Everybody adored Tex. Judith was used to that. She flatly didn't believe about the date the night before the race. It was ridiculous. Tex was with his ship! He'd have no time for women before the big race!

It was only 9 P. M. The banquet would just be under way. She would have liked to turn on the radio. But she was afraid it might awaken Elsie. She managed to read a little. When the butler came for the tray she asked him for the newspapers. When it was all over, Elsie would want to see them.

Somehow the time went. Tex would be there soon. Then she would be all right.

It was long after 10 o'clock when there was a light tap on the door. She jumped up eagerly. It was Michael Dudley coming in to say good night. Judith hoped he did not see how bitterly disappointed she was because Dudley was alone.

"She's still sleeping? Good! And you?"

"I'm fine, thanks," Judith tried to smile.

"Tex told me to tell you he'll see you early in the morning, since he couldn't see Mrs. Stone tonight, anyway."

"Of course."

Judith said, "You've been more than kind, Mrs. Dutton."

"They're giving a big party for him. You know how those things go."

"Yes."

"He's pretty upset about Marvin."

"They were very close," Judith was answering mechanically. Something in the girl's distraught face touched Dudley. He felt sorry for her. These fliers' wives! What a life for them!

"Who is giving the party for Tex?"

"Sonia Winthrop. It's a big affair."

The moment he spoke he knew he had said the wrong thing, and Judith knew he knew. The panic of the early afternoon gripped her. She tried to hide what she felt. She felt sorry for Dudley's sudden embarrassment.

Dudley paid tribute to her gallantry. Judith Aimes was a thoroughbred, he said emphatically.

Dudley took her hand. "Bye-bye, Judith." Then he left her. Judith was so distraught she did not even notice that her husband's flying manager had called her by her first name.

She went in to Elsie, to lie in the bed across from the sleeping girl, sleepless until the deep french windows were grey and it was a new day. Then sleep came . . .

Five hours later Judith awakened with a start. Just for a moment she wondered why there was that leaden feeling in her heart. Then she remembered. Somebody was tapping on the door.

A maid came in with a telegram. Mr. Dudley must have sent it on from the hotel for it informed Judith that Mrs. Royce would arrive in Cleveland on the eleven o'clock train. Arrival of that telegram roused Elsie. She lay there dazed for a moment, staring at Judith uncomprehendingly. Then she buried her face in the pillow.

"Why did I have to wake up?" She seemed to sink in a gulf of misery again.

When the maid brought their breakfast, Judith urged Elsie to eat. The food seemed to revive her.

Talbott plays the Old Fellows at Edgely and Robie and Rohm and Hays clashes with St. Luke's at Croydon.

HOOVER GAINS SPOTLIGHT AT CONVENTION TODAY

Ex-President Will Deliver An Address at The Evening Session Tonight

JAMES' BOOSTERS SURE

By William K. Hutchinson
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—(INS)—A mild boom for former President Herbert Hoover today vied with a Western revolt against the Wendell Wilkie "blitzkrieg" for the spotlight at the second session of the Republican Presidential convention.

An unexpected anti-war revolt within the resolutions committee, however, may provide the day's sensation. A group of isolationists, in control of the subcommittee platform writers, already have put new teeth into the anti-war declaration, the denunciation of President Roosevelt's military aid to the Allies, and the attack on Secretary Hull's reciprocal trading program.

The isolationists won in the subcommittee but must carry their fight through the full resolutions committee. Later, they may have to defend their work on the floor of the convention. But they have succeeded in re-writing a large part of the test platform drafted last week by the pre-convention committee headed by Alf M. Landon.

The Hoover boom was launched by Californians and John W. Haigis, of the Massachusetts delegation, on the eve of the former President's appearance at the convention's guest of honor tonight. Friends of Hoover hope his address will so impress the convention as to lay the groundwork for his renomination later in the week.

It is Hoover night at the convention, but it is Joe Martin's day. The Republican master-mind of the House, Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, takes over his duties as permanent chairman of the convention today. In an address, he will continue the attack on Roosevelt policies launched last night by the 23-year-old Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota, who keynoted the convention.

By Raymond Wilcox
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—(INS)—Pennsylvania Republican leaders today claimed delegation support "more solid than ever before" for Gov. Arthur H. James for President even in the face of reports of apparently substantial backing among Pennsylvania delegates for Wendell Wilkie.

"The Pennsylvania delegation is more solid today for Governor James than ever before," insisted Captain Roger W. Rowland, State Secretary of Property and Supplies, who heads a committee of 500 which is personally contacting all delegations on James' behalf.

National utility executive was assured of "at least 30 votes" from the Pennsylvania representatives.

That there was considerable support for Wilkie among the Pennsylvania delegates was not to be doubted, but the James leaders were confident they could overcome this trend after the first ballot and hold most of the delegates in line.

The strategy of the James leaders was to line up such substantial support for the Governor from delegates from other states that dissidents within the Pennsylvania delegation would have to continue balloting for James in order to live up to their pledge to support the Governor "as long as he honestly has a chance."

At the end of the first convention day of canvassing among the delegates from other states, members of the Rowland Committee reported that they had received tenders of support from "scores of delegates" for Governor James' candidacy.

National Head of Legion Will Be Guest of Ninth District

The life story of Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit, Mich., outstanding attorney and a member of the National Legislative Committee of The American Legion, from 1933 to 1936, is a typical American story of a boy who rose from humble surroundings to positions of responsibility through sheer personal pluck, determination and ability.

In his ambition to acquire an education, Mr. Kelly walked six miles each day at the age of 12 years, to attend high school. When he had won his high school diploma he went after a college education with the same singleness of purpose. He worked his way through both the University of Notre Dame and the University of Detroit, graduating from law school in 1915 at the age of 20, the youngest man in his law class.

The same will power that got him his education over all obstacles also served to carry him ahead in his chosen profession after he started the practice of law in Detroit in 1915. When elected he was serving his seventh year as corporation counsel of the City of Detroit, the fourth largest city in the United States; is past president of the Michigan Association of City Attorneys, and past president of the Institute of Municipal Law Officers, the national organization of city attorneys. He has also had the distinction of serving as president of the Detroit Lawyers' Club, of being the secretary of the Detroit Bar Association for several terms, and he is a member of the bar of the United States Supreme Court. In 1930 he was appointed general counsel of the Detroit Street Railways, a municipally owned utility, serving three years. He has been head of the legal department of the City of Detroit since 1933.

Mr. Kelly had just settled himself to practice law in Detroit when the United States entered the World War. He answered his country's call immediately, and entered the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., on May 8, 1917. There he was recommended for a commission, but suffered an injury which caused his discharge from the service on a surgeon's certificate of disability. He immediately entered a hospital, underwent an operation, and as soon as he recovered he enlisted as a private in the field artillery.

He served with Headquarters Battery of the 223rd Field Artillery at Camp Sherman, Ohio, as a sergeant, and attended the Third Officers' Training Camp there. After completing the course, he was sent to the field artillery replacement depot at Camp Jackson, South Carolina, whence he was sent into overseas duty at once.

Mr. Kelly served almost a year in France, was commissioned second lieutenant of Field Artillery at Saumur, France, and later was assigned to the 62nd Coast Artillery. He was the commanding officer of Battery F of that regiment at the time of demobilization.

Mr. Kelly has been active in the Officers Reserve Corps and is at present a major of Coast Artillery assigned to the 536th Coast Artillery (Anti-Aircraft) Regiment.

Following the war, upon his return to civilian life, Mr. Kelly resumed practice of law in Detroit and became active in the American Legion. He served as the commander of Pittenger Post, No. 119, in Detroit for two years, was commander of the Wayne County Council for one year, department executive committeeman for one year, department vice-commander for two years and department commander in 1929 and 1930. In 1931 he was elected National Executive Committeeman from Michigan for a two-year term, and in 1933 was appointed to the National Legislative Committee, serving as a chairman that year.

The year preceding his election as department commander of Michigan, he served as membership chairman and increased the department enrollment substantially over the records of the preceding six years. He increased the membership again as department commander, firmly established the Children's Bilet as a Michigan institution, organized a Minute-Man Committee of 60 active Legionnaires throughout the state for legislative action, and traveled more than 25,000 miles, delivering approximately 125 speeches in behalf of the American Legion program.

At the national convention held in Detroit in 1931, Mr. Kelly was chairman of the reunion committee and successfully arranged for the meeting of 65 outfits, a total of more than 12,000 Legionnaires registering with their various organizations for these reunions.

Mr. Kelly has been a delegate to 13 national conventions of the American Legion and has twice served as chairman of the Michigan delegation, in Boston and in Chicago. During the year he was chairman of the National Legislative Committee, the Legion was successful in obtaining legislation from Congress to restore the benefits taken from the disabled veterans by the Economy Act.

Born near Otsego, Michigan, Mr. Kelly is married and is the father of six children, three boys and three girls. The only hobbies he has outside of his work are his home and the American Legion.

arranged at this meeting. Solicitors having money to turn in to the general committee are asked to report such donations at the meeting tonight.

The necessity for every member of the committee to be present tonight cannot be over-stressed. A tentative program for each of the three celebrations—morning, afternoon and evening will be submitted to the general committee for final adoption.

Not only the officers, solicitors and others who serve in any way to outline the program, but those contributing of their money are doing their bit to foster and advance the ideals of Americanism.

The celebration will be a safe and sane one, consisting of a flag presentation, free motion pictures for the children, patriotic addresses, and pyrotechnic display.

Those who have been in the habit of leaving the community on July 4th, to celebrate the holiday, would do well to note the variety of activity for Thursday of next week. Bristol has on this occasion much to offer the resident and the visitor.

Move For New Trial In Murder Case Is Lost

ord, the verdict set aside and a new trial granted.

Attorney Garrahan later announced he would appeal to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in the case, the first on record in Pennsylvania in which a new trial is sought because a tipstaff delivered a dictionary to the jury.

Miss Cowan was convicted by a jury of having shot her sister, Mrs. Louella Saeger, late of Spinnerstown, to death at the Allentown State hospital last August 15th in a so-called "mercy slaying." The jury found her guilty of murder in the first degree with a recommendation for life imprisonment.

After Miss Cowan had been sentenced and she had been removed to the State prison for women at Muncy, Lycoming county, Attorney Garrahan moved for a rule to show cause why the sentence should not be stricken from the record, the verdict of the jury set aside and a new trial granted. He alleged that one of the tipstaves who had charge of the jury during its deliberations, at the request of a juror, procured a dictionary which was taken into the jury room.

Attorney Garrahan's petition alleged the juror desired the dictionary to ascertain the definition of the word "malice."
